Sanctioned Violence:
What does it do to our society and relationships?

Presenter: Sr Clare Condon

Sister Clare Condon is the Congregational Leader of the Sisters of the Good Samaritan of the Order of St Benedict. Sr Clare has held a number of leadership positions within the Catholic Church over the past 20 years.

She is an educator, advocate and administrator with a strong focus on the needs of those most disadvantaged in society and on the Catholic Church's social justice mission.

Sr Clare was awarded the 2013 Human Rights Medal.

Overview

Here in Sydney, each morning, the media reports on the preceding night's acts of violence and as a society we rightly deplore such criminal acts. Yet, some violence is sanctioned – on sports arenas, in films, electronic games and in the home. Violence is not only physical it can also be emotional and psychological. It erodes the fabric of a civilized society and our human interactions.

This presentation will reflect on what underlies violence in human relationships and our interactions with one another.

Wednesday
13 August 2014
12:30 pm - 1:30 pm

To register your attendance login to:
http://rightstalk.humanrights.gov.au/next-talk

Venue: Australian Human Rights Commission
Level 3, 175 Pitt St, Sydney NSW 2000

If you have any queries you can also contact the Commission's Communications unit. Phone: 02 9284 9779 Email: events@humanrights.gov.au